The doors slid open and the two Jedi entered the council chamber.

>Anakin Skywalker took off his hood and bowed before the Masters of the Force that he stood before. Obi-Wan did the same. He >remained silent until Yoda spoke.

>"Successful was your mission, I believe..."
"Yes Master Yoda," Obi-Wan replied.

>"So, you discovered the cloning facilities there?" Mace Windu asked. "This is... rather disturbing."

>Obi-Wan nodded.
"Although the Republic allowed them leeway to perform genetic >enhancements on those who claim to require it, I do not believe there is any clause that allows for cloning."

Ki-Adi-Mundi joined the conversation. "Only several special >facilities allow for anything such as this in the Republic and they are under the direct supervision of important officials."

>"I can assure you, Mister Klassrik was for from and important official."

Yoda shook his head. "True, that is. If only we could have brought >him back. Questioned he could have been."

Anakin looked away from the Jedi Master's face. This act caught

>Yoda's attention more.
"Something to say have you, Padawan Skywalker?"

>"No Master," Anakin stuttered.
"The truth you must tell."

Anakin nodded reluctantly. "He attacked me with a vibro-blade.

>I could have disabled him with the Force but my automatic reaction
was to use my lightsaber."

>"A Jedi uses the Force for knowledge and defense. Never for attack."
"But I was defending myself."

>Mace Windu sighed. "You could have defeated him without even thinking about it. You should not even consider attacking."

>"Yes master Windu. Sorry."
"Apologise to us, you should not. A lesson today have you learnt."

>Anakin just nodded.

>"We will discuss the cloning discovery with Chancellor Palpatine,"
Ki-Adi-Mundi informed the two Jedi. Obi-Wan nodded.

>"You may leave."

>Anakin and his teacher left the chamber. Once the doors had closed
behind them the young padawan turned to Kenobi.

>"You didn't tell them," he said.
"No, Anakin," was the reply. "My powers were blocked by the Ysalamiri,

>I do not know if you used anger to kill the creature. I would like to believe that you didn't."

>"Believe me, master," Anakin noted solemnly. "I did not."

>"The line that separates the Dark from the Light is a thin one and it is an easy one to cross, albeit without realising until it is too late.

>Master Yoda once told you that fear was the path to the Dark Side.
Fear
leads to anger, which in turn leads to hate and then to suffering. And >not just the suffering of others, but also yourself."

Anakin
obviously took all this in but did not respond.

>"Be wary Anakin Skywalker," Kenobi said. "You may very well be the chosen
one but even to you the Dark Side remains a constant threat
as it does

>to all Jedi..."
